8. Fiscalimplications: The bills that were passed in the 2001 Session required the breakin service to be of a time duration such that the bill be actuarially neutralin cost and that the provision not place the IRS qualification of the VRS in jeopardy. IRS has not is sued specific guidelines on what constitutes an acceptable breakin service. VRS so ught the advice of benefits counselre lative to the latter requirement. Counselopined that as ix to twelvemonth breakin servicewasmorelikelytoreceiveIRSapprovalthanashorterbreak.Shorterbreaksinservice willalsoaffectretirementpatterns andincreasecosts,however,becausethisbillassumesthatthe teacherwillonlyreturntoworkforoneyear,thosecostsaremitigated.Chapter1073ofthe2000 ActsofAssemblyrequirestheVRStoconductactuarialvaluationsannually.Thecostsasso ciated withthisbillwouldaccrueinFY03andFY04,butwouldnotberecognizedintheemployer contributionratesuntilFY04.
