11. Other comments:

Generally

Currently, every county is required to conduct a general reassessment of real estate every four years. However, in lieu of conducting assessments every four years, counties are authorized to use an annual or biennial assessment method.

Counties with a total population of 50,000 or less may elect by majority vote of its board of supervisors to conduct its general reassessments at five or six-year intervals. According to the 2000 Census, Augusta County has a population of 65,615 people, and therefore, does not qualify to conduct its general reassessments at five or six-year intervals under current law.

Proposal

This bill would authorize Augusta County to elect by majority vote of its board of supervisors, to conduct its general reassessments at either five or six-year intervals.

The effective date of this bill is not specified.
