WHEREAS, Laura Pearson, who served the community of Philomont in western Loudoun County with great dedication as postmaster for 50 years, retired on January 9, 2015; and

WHEREAS, the role of postmaster of Philomont is a family affair for Laura Pearson; the village's first postmaster was a cousin, her grandfather and father-in-law also served as postmasters of Philomont, and she became the town's postmaster in 1965 after her brother-in-law died suddenly while serving in that position; and

WHEREAS, postal customers enjoyed being greeted by Laura Pearson's smile and friendly manner; when she started as postmaster in Philomont five decades ago, a first-class stamp cost five cents, and there were 40 mail boxes; today, "Forever" stamps are preferred by customers, and Philomont has 200 mailboxes; and

WHEREAS, as postmaster, Laura Pearson often was at the center of the close-knit community; from her office behind a small counter in the back of the general store, she served customers, dispensed postage, handed over mail, and kept abreast of goings-on in the area; and
