5. Summary/Purpose:

This bill would provide a refundable individual income tax credit for Taxable Year 2020 in an amount equal to a percentage of the federal child and dependent care tax credit. The amount of the credit would range from 50 percent of the federal credit claimed on the taxpayer's return to 100 percent of such credit based on the amount of a taxpayer's adjusted gross income ("AGI"). A single taxpayer with AGI of over $250,000 and married taxpayers filing jointly with AGI over $500,000 would be ineligible for the credit. The credit would be available only to taxpayers that claimed the federal child and dependent care tax credit. The credit would not be subject to an annual credit cap.

This bill would temporarily suspend Virginia's individual income tax deduction for employment-related expenses upon which the federal child and dependent care tax credit is based for Taxable Year 2020. The deduction would be restored for Taxable Year 2021 and thereafter.

This bill would be effective for taxable years beginning on and after January 1, 2020, but before January 1, 2021.

7. Fiscal Impact Estimates are: Preliminary. (See Line 8.)

8. Fiscal implications:

Administrative Costs:

As a result of this bill, the Department would incur costs of $114,982 in Fiscal Year 2021 and $39,800 in Fiscal Year 2022. This includes costs for updating the Department's systems and communicating with and providing customer service to taxpayers regarding the credit.

Due to the current workload associated with system and processing changes that need to be made prior to the upcoming filing season, it is possible that the Department may not have the ability to implement the changes set forth in this bill by the proposed effective date. Most form development must be completed by August prior to filing season to allow sufficient time for systems testing, both internally and by tax software vendors. While it is possible to make certain smaller modifications later in the development process, programming for more extensive changes such as new tax credits is more difficult to accomplish in a short time frame. Accordingly, the Department will reevaluate its costs once action is taken and may request additional funding or an amendment to delay the effective date of this legislation.

In addition, any changes made later in the development process could impact commercial tax software that is made available by private vendors, potentially causing delays in the availability of such software and making it difficult for taxpayers who file electronically to do so in a timely and accurate manner.

Revenue Impact:

This bill would have an unknown, but potentially significant, negative General Fund revenue impact in Fiscal Year 2021 and Fiscal Year 2022. It is likely that the ongoing coronavirus disease 2019 (“COVID-19”) pandemic will increase the number of taxpayers who claim the federal child and dependent care tax credit and the aggregate amount of qualifying expenses. However, because the COVID-19 pandemic is ongoing and the duration and impact on qualifying child and dependent care expenses is unknown, it is unclear to what extent taxpayers would qualify for the credit that would be provided by this bill.

Based upon historical data regarding Virginia taxpayers who claimed the federal child and dependent care tax credit, the Department estimates that this bill could decrease General Fund revenues in an amount ranging between $131 million and $221 million. However, this estimate is speculative for the reasons stated above.

Federal Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses

Under federal law, a nonrefundable credit is allowed for a portion of qualifying household and dependent care expenses paid for the purpose of allowing the taxpayer to be gainfully employed. To be eligible for the credit, the taxpayer must incur employment-related expenses in providing care for one or more qualified individuals.

For purposes of this credit, the term “qualifying individual” means a qualifying child who has not attained age 13; a dependent of the taxpayer who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself and who has the same principal place of abode as the taxpayer for more than half of the taxable year; or the taxpayer’s spouse, if the spouse is incapable of caring for himself or herself and has the same principal place of abode as the taxpayer for more than half of the taxable year.

Qualifying employment-related expenses include expenses paid for household services and for the care of a qualifying individual that allow the taxpayer to work or look for work. Services rendered outside the home qualify if they involve the care of a qualified individual who regularly spends at least eight hours per day in the taxpayer's home.

The maximum amount of employment-related expenses to which the credit may be applied is $3,000 for one qualifying individual or $6,000 for two or more qualifying individuals, less the amount excludable by the taxpayer for any employer-provided dependent care assistance. The amount of the credit is equal to the amount of qualified expenses multiplied by the applicable percentage, as determined by the taxpayer's AGI. Taxpayer's with an AGI of $15,000 or less use the highest applicable percentage of 35 percent. For taxpayers with an AGI over $15,000, the credit is reduced by one percentage point for each $2,000 of AGI, or fraction thereof, in excess of $15,000. The minimum applicable percentage of 20 percent is used by taxpayers with an AGI greater than $43,000. Thus, the maximum dependent care credit amount is $1,050 for one qualifying individual and $2,100 for two or more qualifying individuals.

Qualifying employment-related expenses are considered in determining the credit only to the extent of earned income. For married taxpayers, expenses are limited to the earned income of the lower-earning spouse. Generally, if one spouse is not working, no credit is allowed. However, if the nonworking spouse is physically ill or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself or is a full-time student at an educational institution for at least five calendar months during the year, the law imputes an earned income amount, for each month of disability or school attendance, of $250 if there is one qualifying individual or $500 if there are two or more qualifying individuals.

Federal Dependent Care Flexible Spending Account

For federal income tax purposes, employees may exclude certain dependent care benefits from income through a dependent care flexible spending account ("dependent care FSA"). A dependent care FSA is a pre-tax benefit account used to pay for eligible dependent care services, such as preschool, summer day camp, before or after school programs, and child or adult daycare. With a dependent care FSA, taxpayers can use pre-tax dollars to pay qualified out-of-pocket dependent care expenses.

In order to qualify for a dependent care FSA, a child must be under age 13 and expenses must be for before and after school care, babysitting and nanny expenses, daycare, nursery and preschool, or summer day camp. A dependent care FSA can also be used for care for a spouse or a relative who is physically or mentally incapable of self-care and lives in the taxpayer's home. The maximum contribution for a dependent care FSA is $5,000 per year or $2,500 per year for married taxpayers who file separate tax returns.

Virginia Deduction for Child and Dependent Care Expenses

In Virginia, taxpayers may deduct the amount of employment-related expenses upon which the federal child and dependent care credit is based. The amount of employment-related expenses that may be deducted is limited to the amount actually used in computing the federal child and dependent care credit. Taxpayers are limited to a maximum deduction of $3,000 for one child and $6,000 for two or more dependents, or the earned income of the spouse having the lowest income, whichever is less.

Proposed Legislation

This bill would provide a refundable individual income tax credit for Taxable Year 2020 in an amount equal to a percentage of the federal child and dependent care tax credit. The amount of the credit would be as follows:

- 100 percent of the amount of taxpayer's federal credit for a single taxpayers with AGI of up to $50,000 and married taxpayers filing jointly with AGI of up to $100,000;
- 75 percent of the amount of the taxpayer's federal credit for single taxpayers with AGI of up to $100,00 and married taxpayers filing jointly with AGI of up to $200,000;
- 50 percent of the amount of the taxpayer's federal credit for single taxpayers with AGI of up to $250,000 and married taxpayers filing jointly with AGI of up to $500,000.

The credit would be unavailable for single taxpayers with AGI over $250,000 and for married taxpayers filing jointly with AGI over $500,000.

The credit would be available only to taxpayers that claimed the federal child and dependent care tax credit. The credit would not be subject to an annual credit cap.

This bill would temporarily suspend Virginia's individual income tax deduction for employment-related expenses upon which the federal child and dependent care tax credit is based for Taxable Year 2020. The deduction would be restored for Taxable Year 2021 and thereafter.

This bill would be effective for taxable years beginning on and after January 1, 2020, but before January 1, 2021.
