5. Summary/Purpose:

This bill would remove the sunset date for the Retail Sales and Use Tax exemption for textbooks and other educational materials withdrawn from inventory at book-publishing distribution facilities. 7. No Fiscal Impact: (See Line 8.)

8. Fiscal implications:

Generally

Under Virginia's sales tax law, retailers and manufacturers are permitted an exemption on purchases of items that become part of their resale inventory. The sales and use tax is collected by the retailer at the time a taxable retail sale is made. The distributor may make exempt purchases of books and educational materials using the resale exemption. However, a retailer or manufacturer that uses an item purchased exempt of the tax for a purpose other than sale or resale is subject to use tax on the cost price of the item.

Generally, withdrawals from inventory by a retailer or manufacturer for donation or free distribution are treated as taxable transactions because these items are not withdrawn from inventory for sale or resale. This constitutes a taxable use by the retailer or manufacturer as discussed above. Taxpayers who make taxable withdrawals from inventory are required to report use tax to the Department, calculated on the cost price of the items withdrawn from inventory.

The exemption for textbooks and other educational materials is an exception to the general requirement that a business pay use tax on inventory withdrawn and donated free of charge. The exemption was first enacted in 1998 with a sunset date, which was extended in 2002, 2004, and 2007.

Proposal

This bill would remove the sunset date for the Retail Sales and Use Tax exemption for textbooks and other educational materials withdrawn from inventory at book-publishing distribution facilities. The exemption applies when such materials are withdrawn for free distribution to professors and other individuals with an educational focus, and is currently set to expire on July 1, 2012.

The effective date of this bill is not specified.
