8. Fiscal Implications: This bill increases the administrative and regulatory responsibilities of the Department of Professional and Occupational Regulation (DPOR). The Real Estate Appraiser Board (Board) will need to revise the real estate appraiser regulations in order to conform to the statutory changes in a way that ensures Virginia remains in compliance with federal Appraisal Subcommittee guidelines. The Board will need to conduct at least three additional meetings to complete the regulatory revisions. Board member travel and other related expenses for the additional meetings in FY 2018 will total approximately $3,230. The cost of mailings as required by the APA is expected to be $100 or less in FY 2018. It is likely that the number of complaints filed against appraisal management Companies will increase as a result of this legislation. An increase to the workload to receive, investigate, and adjudicate the additional cases is likely although the number of cases is indeterminate at this time.
