10. Technical amendment necessary: No

11. Other comments:

Background

Generally, the Retail Sales and Use Tax is imposed upon the charge for the sale or use of tangible personal property, unless an exemption applies. Virginia law defines "tangible personal property" as personal property that may be seen, weighed, measured, felt, or touched, or is in any other manner perceptible to the senses. Current law does not provide an exemption for menstrual supplies such as pads, tampons, and menstrual cups.

Other States

Of the 45 states that impose a sales and use tax, nine states exempt feminine hygiene products from the tax: Connecticut (beginning July 1, 2018), Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. Washington, D.C. also passed legislation to exempt feminine hygiene products and diapers from the sales tax. The exemption was passed "subject to appropriations" and will not take effect until the projected revenue loss is accounted for in its annual budget. The proposed 2018 D.C. budget does not account for the exemption. The California State Assembly also passed legislation in a previous session to exempt feminine hygiene products, but the bill was vetoed by the Governor.

Proposal

This bill would provide an exemption from the Retail Sales and Use Tax for the following menstrual supplies: pads, tampons, and menstrual cups.

The effective date of this bill would be January 1, 2019.
