Offered February 16, 2022

Commending the 2020 and 2022 inductees into the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame.

Patron—Davis

WHEREAS, in 1996, the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame was designated the official Sports Hall of Fame of the Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame, located in Virginia Beach, has honored many of Virginia's exceptional athletes, coaches, and media personalities since its inception; and

WHEREAS, the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame celebrates athletic excellence in the Commonwealth, highlights philanthropy through sports, and inspires sports fans through engaging and entertaining programs; and

WHEREAS, as part of its 49th Induction Weekend, the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame will honor the Class of 2020, the 2020 Steve Guback Distinguished Virginia Award honoree, and the Class of 2022; and

WHEREAS, the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame is honored to present the Class of 2020 inductees as follows:

The Class of 2020

Dennis Carter

A native of Danville, Dennis Carter began his career in sports media working for two outlets in his hometown, the Danville Register, and WBTM/WAKG Radio. He moved to WSET-TV in Lynchburg in 1983 and worked there for 37 years, 35 as sports director. He has been honored numerous times by both the Virginia Associated Press Broadcasters and Virginia Association of Broadcasters. He has previously been inducted into the Lynchburg Area, Amherst County, and Danville Community College Sports Halls of Fame.

Michael "Mike" Cabbage

A Charlottesville native and University of Virginia graduate, Mike Cabbage was drafted by the Washington Senators in the Major League Baseball (MLB) Draft in 1971. He played eight seasons in the MLB, then served as manager for the Tidewater Tides and Lynchburg Mets. He held coaching roles for the New York Mets, Houston Astros, and Boston Red Sox, including one stint as interim manager for the New York Mets. Beginning in 2004, he focused on scouting and player development and served as a special assistant to the general manager of the 2019 World Series Champion, Washington Nationals.

Lawrence Johnson

A native of Chesapeake and a graduate of Great Bridge High School, Lawrence Johnson placed first in the pole vault high school division at the 1992 Penn Relays and continued that success at the University of Tennessee. He was a seven-time Southeastern Conference champion and four-time National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) champion and was named the 1996 NCAA Athlete of the Year. He competed in two Summer Olympics and won a silver medal in Sydney in 2000, becoming the first African American pole vaulter to medal in an Olympic Games.

Bruce Rader

Bruce Rader took on the role of Sports Director at WAVY-TV in Portsmouth in 1979 and has held that position for 43 years. Serving the Hampton Roads market, he changed the landscape of television sports media by focusing on underserved segments such as high school sports and the area's historically Black colleges and universities. He has previously been honored by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, the Virginia Association of Broadcasters, and the Norfolk Sports Club. He has been inducted into the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association Hall of Fame, the Hampton Roads Sports Hall of Fame, and the Hampton Roads Sports Media Hall of Fame.

Tracy Saunders

A native of Suffolk, Tracy Saunders enjoyed a legendary career with the Norfolk State University women's basketball team. While playing for the Lady Spartans, she was named three-time All-Conference, two-time All-American, the 1991 NCAA Division II Player of the Year, as well as the 1991 Honda Award recipient, recognizing the top female athlete in all Division II sports. She finished her career with 2,084 points and 978 rebounds. Her number 10 jersey is retired by Norfolk State University, and she has previously been honored by the Norfolk State Athletics Hall of Fame, the Hampton Roads Sports Hall of Fame, and the Hampton Roads African American Sports Hall of Fame.

Albert "Al" Toon, Jr.

Al Toon from Menchville High School in Newport News was a record-setting athlete at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in both football and track and field (triple jump). Drafted 10th overall
